

PUBLIC DEMANDS TRUTH ABOUT THE SCHOESSEL CASE

Identity of Assailants Who Foully Murdered Citizen Must Be Revealed.

IS NOW SEALED MYSTERY

Coroner's Jury Withholds Verdict While Waiting for More Tangible Evidence.

It has often been said and repeatedly proven that "murder will out." Will this adage be verified in the Schoessel case? Will the unknown assassins of this good man who was shot down at his own doorstep the evening of Nov. 7 on returning from choir practice ever be known or apprehended? These are the questions which are now agitating the public mind to a greater degree than is generally recognized, and a solution of the strange tragedy which cost the life of one of Rock Island's most exemplary citizens is being demanded.

Without a Clue.

Although John B. Schoessel was murdered considerably over two months ago, there has not developed a single clue on the surface upon which the officers can rely. There does not appear to be a tangible bit of evidence which can be used as a reasonable hypothesis upon which to work. The case seems like an impenetrable wall which defies scaling and because this is true, the public is more determined than ever that the key which will unlock the mystery that surrounds the violent death of Mr. Schoessel be found and the true facts concerning the tragedy be disclosed.

The coroner's jury deserves credit for the careful and painstaking investigation which has been instituted. The members of that body have been conscientious in their endeavor to ferret out the identity of the murderers. Yet so tangled are the skeins of evidence that they seem to lead nowhere and the jurors appear to be as much in the dark as when the inquest opened.

Want to Know.

However, the public wants to know who killed John Schoessel. The people are demanding that his death be avenged and that the guilty parties be apprehended, regardless of the cost, and brought to justice.

If the $500 reward which the board of supervisors posted for the apprehension of the cowardly assailant or assailants who shot this defenseless citizen to death in the shadow of his own home, is not enough, the sum should be doubled and the city should take similar action.

The Awful Shock.

Not only does justice demand that every possible means be taken to find the assassins, but sympathy for the widow who was given such a cruel blow by fate, should spur the officials to renewed effort. The public thinks of this lonely woman and her only son who without a moment's notice were bereft of the loving care and support of an ideal husband and father and called upon to bear the greatest grief that can come to mortals. Mrs. Schoessel and her son, Arthur, are now in the east, attempting to recover from the effects of the terrible shock.

It will be remembered that the condition of Mrs. Schoessel was so serious at the time the inquest opened, that she was not called upon to undergo the ordeal of reciting the harrowing events of the night of Nov. 7, but on her return she will probably be sufficiently improved to testify as to the tragedy. In the meantime the coroner's jury has been unable to return a verdict. The investigation has failed to definitely connect anyone with the crime.

On a Motor Trip

Take a box of Keyl's cream peppermints or wintergreens to banish the dusty taste. Keyl's bonbons and chocolates are delicious and appropriate on all occasions.

Keyl's

Besides Keyl's Bonbons and Chocolates—the masterpieces of flavor—Keyl's come in many varieties to suit every candy taste.

Our stock is always fresh.

Look for the Red Sign Keyl's Sales Agent HARPER HOUSE PHARMACY.

Ask for Keyl's Cocoa at your grocer's.

PERSONAL POINTS

George Camper of East St. Louis is in the city today on business.

Miss Rose Marlow of Marshalltown, Iowa, is the guest of relatives in the city for a week.

Mrs. Charles W. Fry has returned to her home in Sedalia, Mo., after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Hudson, 1018 Twelfth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Mosenfelder will leave January 28 on an extended trip to Naples, Italy. They intend to make the entire trip by water as far as possible, going by way of the Suez canal. Many interesting historic points in and about Naples will be visited during their stay. The trip will consume about seven weeks.

RETAIL GROCERS MAKE KUSCHMANN THEIR PRESIDENT

Discuss Matter of Delinquent Charge Customers on Their Books.

ANNUAL BANQUET FEB. 16

Regular Monthly Meeting Held in the Rooms of Rock Island Business Men's Association.

F. R. Kuschmann was named to head the retail grocers of Rock Island at the regular monthly meeting and election of officers held last night in the rooms of the Rock Island Business Men's association in the Safety building. A large number of the total membership of the retail association was present and following the completion of regular routine business the following officers were elected: President—F. R. Kuschmann. Vice President—C. M. Gannon. Treasurer—H. A. McCarty. Secretary—Allen F. Miller. Directors for two years—C. F. Biedel, J. M. Schaub and George H. Millhouse.

Discuss Various Matters.

Following the election of officers different matters of importance were discussed, among them the coming banquet of grocers which is to be held Feb. 16.

The matter of delinquent customers on the books of the various grocers was also discussed, and every effort is being made to stop this evil. The grocers suffer perhaps more than any other retail dealers from delinquent customers.

HE'S CHICAGO'S 5-YEAR-OLD COP

Donald Mathews.

Master Donald Mathews of Chicago is only five years old, but he's a regular policeman. He has uniform, badge, belt, helmet, night stick and service stripes. Also he can imitate to perfection a policeman's gait.

Master Mathews reports for duty at a Chicago police station every morning at 10:30. The boy whose dad is a cop, is assigned to the duty of keeping loafers out of the corridor of the East Chicago station house.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Quickly Relieved.

Morton L. Hill of Lebanon, Ind., says: "My wife had inflammatory rheumatism in every muscle and joint; her suffering was terrible and her body and face were swollen almost beyond recognition; had been in bed for six weeks and had eight physicians, but received no benefit until she tried Dr. Detchon's Relief for Rheumatism. It gave immediate relief and she was able to walk in three days. I am sure it saved her life." Sold by Otto Grotjan, 1501 Second avenue, Rock Island, and Gust Schlegel & Son, 220 Second street, Davenport.—(Adv.)

COURT APPOINTS GEORGE W. WOOD SPECIAL COUNSEL

Judge R. W. Olmsted Grants Petition of Grand Jury for Additional Prosecutor.

IS SIGNED BY 17 MEMBERS

Claim is Made That State's Attorney F. E. Thompson is Interested in Pending Cases.

Acting favorably upon a petition signed by 17 members of the grand jury, asking for the appointment of a special prosecutor to investigate alleged graft in county offices, Judge R. W. Olmsted this afternoon in circuit court named George W. Wood, Moline, to act in that capacity.

A petition, signed by 17 members of the secret body, was presented to the court, asking that special counsel be named to assist in a proposed investigation and alleging that State's Attorney F. E. Thompson was "interested" and therefore not in position to properly prosecute. It was stated in the petition that "certain felonies and misdemeanors, including embezzlement and conspiracies" in county official life had been committed and that the present state's attorney was "interested."

Thompson Replies.

After the petition had been presented to Judge Olmsted by C. S. Pettit, foreman, the court asked State's Attorney F. E. Thompson if he had anything to say in the matter. Mr. Thompson bitterly arraigned those responsible for the move and declared that it had been prompted by the worst set of "political pirates" this county had ever seen. He demanded that the charges against him be made specific. He challenged any member of the present grand jury or any other grand jury to cite one instance where he had failed to summon any witness in any case or had refused to investigate any matter that he honestly thought should be looked into. He declared that the court did not have a legal right to appoint a special prosecutor "since he was neither ill, absent nor interested in any matter pending."

Judge Olmsted, in allowing the petition, declared the state's attorney had no right to say that the move was a reflection on his integrity, and he declared that, inasmuch as the petition had been so generally signed, he did not feel like standing in the way of any investigation the grand jury cared to make.

MOLINE IS NAMED BY SECRETARIES

Y. M. C. A. Heads Gather at Local Association in First of Series of Meetings.

A group of Y. M. C. A. secretaries, representing the associations of the tri-city, Clinton and Muscatine, were in session at the local Y. M. C. A. today. This was the first of a series of conferences which will be held for the purpose of mutual helpfulness in the exchange of ideas and plans for work.

The session this morning was devoted to discussions of several problems important to association workers, and to the formation of an informal organization.

At noon the party met at luncheon as guests of the local association, and the meeting closed early in the afternoon. The next meeting of the secretaries will be held at Moline Feb. 5.

The Toastmasters' club will meet this evening at the Y. M. C. A. Reservations have been made by a goodly number, and a lively meeting is in prospect. The topics for oratorical effort this evening will deal with a review of the events of the past year. Walter Young will officiate as toastmaster, and a startling array of eloquence will be brought forth as the program is given.

LICENSED TO WED

Frank Carper	Buda
Miss Ida Beaton	Buda
Charles W. Schomp	East Moline
Mrs. Amelia J. Lee	East Moline
Adiel Carlton	Moline
Miss Augusta Van Der Meer	Moline
Addison L. Kent	East Moline
Miss Catherine R. Patrick	Denver
Ray T. Blair	Topeka, Kas.
Miss Minnie Nelson	Duluth, Minn.
Ivan W. Morrison	Colchester, Ill.
Miss Orla Veach	Vienna, Ill.
Roy Preston	Illinois City
Miss Grace Fordham	Illinois City
Thomas W. Bugg	Rock Island
Mrs. Jessie McCloud	Colchester
E. B. Curtis	Letts, Iowa
Miss Della Smith	Albany, Ill.

M'HUGH & MONTROSE LET GO OF HOSTELRY IN IOWA

Charles McHugh and J. E. Montrose, formerly lessees of the Harper and Rock Island house here, have disposed of their unexpired lease of the Hotel Montrose, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, together with furniture and equipment to Charles E. Taylor and his associates. The National Hotel Reporter quotes $100,000 as the consideration. Messrs. McHugh and Montrose operated the Cedar Rapids property seven years. Mr. Taylor during that time served as manager of the house. Messrs. McHugh and Montrose will hereafter confine their activities to the Lexington hotel in Chicago, which is proving a most prosperous property.

OBITUARY

Funeral of Alonzo McCain. The body of Alonzo McCain, who passed away in Des Moines Sunday, arrived here last night. The funeral services will be conducted from the home of a relative, Harry E. Thompson, 1604 Thirty-fifth street, at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. Rev. H. W. Reed officiating. Rock Island lodge No. 658, A. F. & A. M., will have charge of the services. Burial will be made in Chippannock cemetery.

Funeral of Mrs. Emma Ottoman. The funeral services of Mrs. Emma Ottoman were conducted this afternoon at 2 o'clock from Knox's chapel. Rev. Richard S. Haney of Moline had charge of the services. Burial was made in Chippannock cemetery.

I. O. O. F. ENJOY ROLL CALL MEET

Plans Made to Make This Annual Feature—Grand Lodge Will Convene Here.

The Rock Island lodge, No. 18, I. O. O. F., met in regular session last night, and after the routine of business had been completed, a roll call session was held. Emil Beck was asked to preside as honorary noble. Mr. Beck has been a member for 35 years. Fred Krell acted as honorary vice grand.

Supper was served, following the session, and it was decided to make the roll call meeting an annual affair. On Feb. 21, a membership contest will be conducted and a class of candidates initiated. A meeting of the grand lodge will be held in Rock Island at that time for the counties of Henry, Mercer and Rock Island.

ROCK ISLAND MAN GETS GOLD WATCH

Contractor Tappendorf Presented With Token by Taxman Bros.

Contractor Henry W. Tappendorf was today presented with a handsome solid gold watch, suitably inscribed, by Taxman Bros., as a token of appreciation for his prompt fulfillment of the contract awarded him by this firm, for the erection of the two story building at the corner of Ninth street and Second avenue.

Mr. Tappendorf broke ground Oct. 15, 1913, and in spite of the weather conditions and the fact that a great deal of blasting was necessary, he completed the structure well within the time required. The building is to be used as a theatre and mercantile house.

ASK THAT GIRL BE DECLARED DEPENDENT

A petition was filed today in the county court to declare Helen Irene Doebbler dependent. She is four years of age and is now at the Bethany home. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Peter Doebbler and she was deserted by her mother some time ago. The hearing is set for 10 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Another petition was filed to have Anna Hartmann declared delinquent. She is 13 years old and a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hartmann, 2207 Sixth avenue. The parents are unable to control her actions and ask that a guardian be appointed. The hearing comes up tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock.

The petition for a mother's pension made by Mrs. Anna Maria Peterson who lives at Thirty-seventh street and Eighth avenue, Moline, will be heard Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. She asks for $2 a month for each of her five children.

POLICE NEWS

Lee Harris was arrested this morning by Officer Fitzgerald and arraigned before Police Magistrate C. J. Smith on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was dismissed without fine.

SEEK TO WIDEN SIXTEENTH AVENUE

A petition was filed today in the county court to condemn 20 feet on the south side of Sixteenth avenue, from Fifteenth to Sixteenth streets. The object of this petition is to have the street widened. Judge Benjamin S. Bell has not set the date for the hearing.

Public Notice.

I will not be responsible for any debts contracted by my wife, Clementine Schroeder, after this date.

JOHN F. C. SCHROEDER.
Jan. 20, 1914.—(Adv.)

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is not a common, every day cough mixture. It is a meritorious remedy for all the troublesome and dangerous complications resulting from cold in the head, throat, chest or lungs. Sold by all druggists.—(Adv.)

My Front is All Shot to Pieces

But this is not true of my stock. You can still find many choice patterns in the best woollens, although I have made more suits and overcoats than ever before. Contractors are now busy remodeling my store and in order to clean up my winter stock I am offering special inducements that you can't afford to overlook.

Haege The Tailor

Opposite Harper House
Rock Island

Two Stores

809 BRADY ST.
Davenport

NINE THOUSAND DOLLARS OR HIS BABY? TRUSTED CLERK CHOOSES FORMER; FLEES

Clayton M. Saxty, his wife and baby.

Fort Smith, Ark., Jan. 20.—Nine thousand dollars or his baby?

Clayton M. Saxty, 22 years old, trusted clerk of an express company in this city at a salary of $70 a month, chose the former and is now the object of a search in every large city in the United States.

The money was delivered to the express company by a bank to be sent to a nearby town. Saxty was alone in the office when it arrived. He accepted for it, as he had authority to do. Five hours later when another clerk arrived to prepare the money for shipment he found Saxty missing.

Of the original delivery of $9,500 only $195 in silver was intact. The remainder, in currency, was gone. An investigation disclosed that Saxty had purchased a motorcycle with $250 of the stolen funds and had ridden at breakneck speed to Van Buren, where he arrived just in time to catch a train. His motorcycle was found abandoned along a river bank.

When Saxty left home on the morning of the robbery he kissed his 19-year-old wife and eight-months-old babe goodbye. When his wife was told of his absence and the missing money she searched the house for some note she had hoped her husband had penned, shedding some light upon his action. She found none, but instead discovered a crumpled photograph of their babe beneath a bed. It had been violently torn from the family album.

"I am sure he wanted to take baby's picture with him," says the child-wife, "but he knew that as long as he had it, it would haunt him wherever he went and eventually he would be driven home to see his child."

Saxty was very fond of motion pictures. Thrilling films were his delight. He never missed an opportunity of seeing them. Whether the "movies" furnished the suggestion of the theft or whether the mere temptation was responsible, is wife does not know. She believes, however, that had he kept the baby's photo his fatherly feeling for the child would have sent him home before he had traveled very far.

ing of the robbery he kissed his 19-year-old wife and eight-months-old babe goodbye. When his wife was told of his absence and the missing money she searched the house for some note she had hoped her husband had penned, shedding some light upon his action. She found none, but instead discovered a crumpled photograph of their babe beneath a bed. It had been violently torn from the family album.

"I am sure he wanted to take baby's picture with him," says the child-wife, "but he knew that as long as he had it, it would haunt him wherever he went and eventually he would be driven home to see his child."

Saxty was very fond of motion pictures. Thrilling films were his delight. He never missed an opportunity of seeing them. Whether the "movies" furnished the suggestion of the theft or whether the mere temptation was responsible, is wife does not know. She believes, however, that had he kept the baby's photo his fatherly feeling for the child would have sent him home before he had traveled very far.

ing of the robbery he kissed his 19-year-old wife and eight-months-old babe goodbye. When his wife was told of his absence and the missing money she searched the house for some note she had hoped her husband had penned, shedding some light upon his action. She found none, but instead discovered a crumpled photograph of their babe beneath a bed. It had been violently torn from the family album.

"I am sure he wanted to take baby's picture with him," says the child-wife, "but he knew that as long as he had it, it would haunt him wherever he went and eventually he would be driven home to see his child."

Saxty was very fond of motion pictures. Thrilling films were his delight. He never missed an opportunity of seeing them. Whether the "movies" furnished the suggestion of the theft or whether the mere temptation was responsible, is wife does not know. She believes, however, that had he kept the baby's photo his fatherly feeling for the child would have sent him home before he had traveled very far.

ing of the robbery he kissed his 19-year-old wife and eight-months-old babe goodbye. When his wife was told of his absence and the missing money she searched the house for some note she had hoped her husband had penned, shedding some light upon his action. She found none, but instead discovered a crumpled photograph of their babe beneath a bed. It had been violently torn from the family album.

"I am sure he wanted to take baby's picture with him," says the child-wife, "but he knew that as long as he had it, it would haunt him wherever he went and eventually he would be driven home to see his child."

Saxty was very fond of motion pictures. Thrilling films were his delight. He never missed an opportunity of seeing them. Whether the "movies" furnished the suggestion of the theft or whether the mere temptation was responsible, is wife does not know. She believes, however, that had he kept the baby's photo his fatherly feeling for the child would have sent him home before he had traveled very far.

ing of the robbery he kissed his 19-year-old wife and eight-months-old babe goodbye. When his wife was told of his absence and the missing money she searched the house for some note she had hoped her husband had penned, shedding some light upon his action. She found none, but instead discovered a crumpled photograph of their babe beneath a bed. It had been violently torn from the family album.

"I am sure he wanted to take baby's picture with him," says the child-wife, "but he knew that as long as he had it, it would haunt him wherever he went and eventually he would be driven home to see his child."

Saxty was very fond of motion pictures. Thrilling films were his delight. He never missed an opportunity of seeing them. Whether the "movies" furnished the suggestion of the theft or whether the mere temptation was responsible, is wife does not know. She believes, however, that had he kept the baby's photo his fatherly feeling for the child would have sent him home before he had traveled very far.

ing of the robbery he kissed his 19-year-old wife and eight-months-old babe goodbye. When his wife was told of his absence and the missing money she searched the house for some note she had hoped her husband had penned, shedding some light upon his action. She found none, but instead discovered a crumpled photograph of their babe beneath a bed. It had been violently torn from the family album.

"I am sure he wanted to take baby's picture with him," says the child-wife, "but he knew that as long as he had it, it would haunt him wherever he went and eventually he would be driven home to see his child."

Saxty was very fond of motion pictures. Thrilling films were his delight. He never missed an opportunity of seeing them. Whether the "movies" furnished the suggestion of the theft or whether the mere temptation was responsible, is wife does not know. She believes, however, that had he kept the baby's photo his fatherly feeling for the child would have sent him home before he had traveled very far.

ing of the robbery he kissed his 19-year-old wife and eight-months-old babe goodbye. When his wife was told of his absence and the missing money she searched the house for some note she had hoped her husband had penned, shedding some light upon his action. She found none, but instead discovered a crumpled photograph of their babe beneath a bed. It had been violently torn from the family album.

"I am sure he wanted to take baby's picture with him," says the child-wife, "but he knew that as long as he had it, it would haunt him wherever he went and eventually he would be driven home to see his child."

Saxty was very fond of motion pictures. Thrilling films were his delight. He never missed an opportunity of seeing them. Whether the "movies" furnished the suggestion of the theft or whether the mere temptation was responsible, is wife does not know. She believes, however, that had he kept the baby's photo his fatherly feeling for the child would have sent him home before he had traveled very far.

ing of the robbery he kissed his 19-year-old wife and eight-months-old babe goodbye. When his wife was told of his absence and the missing money she searched the house for some note she had hoped her husband had penned, shedding some light upon his action. She found none, but instead discovered a crumpled photograph of their babe beneath a bed. It had been violently torn from the family album.

"I am sure he wanted to take baby's picture with him," says the child-wife, "but he knew that as long as he had it, it would haunt him wherever he went and eventually he would be driven home to see his child."

Saxty was very fond of motion pictures. Thrilling films were his delight. He never missed an opportunity of seeing them. Whether the "movies" furnished the suggestion of the theft or whether the mere temptation was responsible, is wife does not know. She believes, however, that had he kept the baby's photo his fatherly feeling for the child would have sent him home before he had traveled very far.

ing of the robbery he kissed his 19-year-old wife and eight-months-old babe goodbye. When his wife was told of his absence and the missing money she searched the house for some note she had hoped her husband had penned, shedding some light upon his action. She found none, but instead discovered a crumpled photograph of their babe beneath a bed. It had been violently torn from the family album.

"I am sure he wanted to take baby's picture with him," says the child-wife, "but he knew that as long as he had it, it would haunt him wherever he went and eventually he would be driven home to see his child."

Saxty was very fond of motion pictures. Thrilling films were his delight. He never missed an opportunity of seeing them. Whether the "movies" furnished the suggestion of the theft or whether the mere temptation was responsible, is wife does not know. She believes, however, that had he kept the baby's photo his fatherly feeling for the child would have sent him home before he had traveled very far.

ing of the robbery he kissed his 19-year-old wife and eight-months-old babe goodbye. When his wife was told of his absence and the missing money she searched the house for some note she had hoped her husband had penned, shedding some light upon his action. She found none, but instead discovered a crumpled photograph of their babe beneath a bed. It had been violently torn from the family album.

"I am sure he wanted to take baby's picture with him," says the child-wife, "but he knew that as long as he had it, it would haunt him wherever he went and eventually he would be driven home to see his child."

Saxty was very fond of motion pictures. Thrilling films were his delight. He never missed an opportunity of seeing them. Whether the "movies" furnished the suggestion of the theft or whether the mere temptation was responsible, is wife does not know. She believes, however, that had he kept the baby's photo his fatherly feeling for the child would have sent him home before he had traveled very far.

ing of the robbery he kissed his 19-year-old wife and eight-months-old babe goodbye. When his wife was told of his absence and the missing money she searched the house for some note she had hoped her husband had penned, shedding some light upon his action. She found none, but instead discovered a crumpled photograph of their babe beneath a bed. It had been violently torn from the family album.

"I am sure he wanted to take baby's picture with him," says the child-wife, "but he knew that as long as he had it, it would haunt him wherever he went and eventually he would be driven home to see his child."

Saxty was very fond of motion pictures. Thrilling films were his delight. He never missed an opportunity of seeing them. Whether the "movies" furnished the suggestion of the theft or whether the mere temptation was responsible, is wife does not know. She believes, however, that had he kept the baby's photo his fatherly feeling for the child would have sent him home before he had traveled very far.

ing of the robbery he kissed his 19-year-old wife and eight-months-old babe goodbye. When his wife was told of his absence and the missing money she searched the house for some note she had hoped her husband had penned, shedding some light upon his action. She found none, but instead discovered a crumpled photograph of their babe beneath a bed. It had been violently torn from the family album.

"I am sure he wanted to take baby's picture with him," says the child-wife, "but he knew that as long as he had it, it would haunt him wherever he went and eventually he would be driven home to see his child."

Saxty was very fond of motion pictures. Thrilling films were his delight. He never missed an opportunity of seeing them. Whether the "movies" furnished the suggestion of the theft or whether the mere temptation was responsible, is wife does not know. She believes, however, that had he kept the baby's photo his fatherly feeling for the child would have sent him home before he had traveled very far.

ing of the robbery he kissed his 19-year-old wife and eight-months-old babe goodbye. When his wife was told of his absence and the missing money she searched the house for some note she had hoped her husband had penned, shedding some light upon his action. She found none, but instead discovered a crumpled photograph of their babe beneath a bed. It had been violently torn from the family album.

"I am sure he wanted to take baby's picture with him," says the child-wife, "but he knew that as long as he had it, it would haunt him wherever he went and eventually he would be driven home to see his child."

Saxty was very fond of motion pictures. Thrilling films were his delight. He never missed an opportunity of seeing them. Whether the "movies" furnished the suggestion of the theft or whether the mere temptation was responsible, is wife does not know. She believes, however, that had he kept the baby's photo his fatherly feeling for the child would have sent him home before he had traveled very far.

ing of the robbery he kissed his 19-year-old wife and eight-months-old babe goodbye. When his wife was told of his absence and the missing money she searched the house for some note she had hoped her husband had penned, shedding some light upon his action. She found none, but instead discovered a crumpled photograph of their babe beneath a bed. It had been violently torn from the family album.

"I am sure he wanted to take baby's picture with him," says the child-wife, "but he knew that as long as he had it, it would haunt him wherever he went and eventually he would be driven home to see his child."

Saxty was very fond of motion pictures. Thrilling films were his delight. He never missed an opportunity of seeing them. Whether the "movies" furnished the suggestion of the theft or whether the mere temptation was responsible, is wife does not know. She believes, however, that had he kept the baby's photo his fatherly feeling for the child would have sent him home before he had traveled very far.

ing of the robbery he kissed his 19-year-old wife and eight-months-old babe goodbye. When his wife was told of his absence and the missing money she searched the house for some note she had hoped her husband had penned, shedding some light upon his action. She found none, but instead discovered a crumpled photograph of their babe beneath a bed. It had been violently torn from the family album.

"I am sure he wanted to take baby's picture with him," says the child-wife, "but he knew that as long as he had it, it would haunt him wherever he went and eventually he would be driven home to see his child."

Saxty was very fond of motion pictures. Thrilling films were his delight. He never missed an opportunity of seeing them. Whether the "movies" furnished the suggestion of the theft or whether the mere temptation was responsible, is wife does not know. She believes, however, that had he kept the baby's photo his fatherly feeling for the child would have sent him home before he had traveled very far.